

GLOBAL EDUCATION

It's important to study ecology in a classroom, but sometimes it's best to explore the rainforest in the rainforest. Be one of Franklin College's 30 percent of students who travel internationally as you put into practice what you're learning via study away, international internships or Immersive Term study away courses - all while graduating in four years and earning college credit for your experience.

INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL COURSES

Immersive Term

Immersive Term is a three-week term that takes place during the month of January. During Immersive Term, students engage deeply in a single, highly focused subject matter. While on-campus Immersive Term courses explore contemporary and non-traditional topics like Star Wars and religion or Beyoncé and feminism, the college offers six to seven study away courses each January. These academically rigorous courses turn the world into a classroom as students visit historic relics, museums and other culturally significant sites to learn about a subject by experiencing it. Faculty-led small groups have traveled to Costa Rica, France, Spain, England and elsewhere studying language, religion, sports, architecture, history and more. This unique option to learn while exploring other cultures is open to all Franklin College students as early as freshman year.

SEMESTER AND SUMMER ABROAD

International internships and study away

Every Franklin College student has the chance to travel anywhere in the world while completing a summer internship or studying away for a semester, often for around the same cost as a traditional semester. The Office of Global Education works one-on-one with students to identify either an ideal destination or experience, and

OFFICE OVERVIEW

- IHE: Students are able to explore the world from the comfort of a classroom in IHE, a competitive graduate-style honors course taught every spring on a different contemporary and international topic. Students who earn a B or higher are eligible for study abroad scholarships. Past topics include beauty in different cultures, caretaking for children around the world and immigration.
- Financial assistance: The college has a generous scholarship fund that can make studying away affordable. Students can work directly with the Office of Global Education to apply for and secure scholarships.
- Office contact information: Read more about domestic and international travel at www.FranklinCollege.edu/global or contact Office of Global Education Director Jennifer Cataldi directly at 317.738.8256 or jcataldi@FranklinCollege.edu.
