

Adjunct Instructor in Political Science

Franklin College invites applications for a part-time teaching position in Political Science for the Fall 2022 semester.

Located about 20 miles from downtown Indianapolis, we support purposeful and practical academic experiences in and out of the classroom that leverage this location as students pursue personal, intellectual and professional growth. The new hire will join the College at a time of exciting curricular change. We provide a strong, active, and tailored liberal arts education through small class sizes and intentional relationships between students and their faculty mentors. Please see www.FranklinCollege.edu for more details.

The candidate will be expected to teach one section of Introduction to Comparative Politics for the department beginning August 29, 2022. This is a 4 credit-hour course at the 100-level in our curriculum. We seek candidates who can demonstrate a genuine interest in working with undergraduates in a small-college liberal arts setting. Graduate study in comparative politics or related field is required. College-level teaching experience is preferred. Inquiries may be directed to Professor Randall Smith (rsmith3@franklincollege.edu).

Review of applications will begin immediately and will continue until the position is filled. Applicants should submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae, evidence of teaching excellence, and contact information for three current references via the online application system at – Franklin College Faculty Application:
