VISITING ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF ECONOMICS

Franklin College invites applications for a one-year Visiting Assistant Professor of Economics, with possibility of renewal, to begin August 2023. Located just 20 minutes from culturally rich downtown Indianapolis, Franklin College is a private, four-year liberal arts college.

The ideal candidate will be capable of and enthusiastic about teaching a variety of undergraduate courses. Potential courses include Intermediate Microeconomics, Intermediate Macroeconomics, Econometrics, Money and Banking, Labor Economics and Management, and International Business and Finance. Typical teaching load includes 24 semester hours a year. Opportunities for broad service to the college are also available.

The ideal candidate will demonstrate a commitment to teaching and learning, an openness to innovation, and a genuine dedication to working with undergraduates in a small, collegial liberal arts setting. The candidate must possess an ABD for consideration for hire; however, a Ph.D. is preferred. Benefits package includes health, dental and vision insurance, life and disability insurance, retirement plan, EAP, and tuition benefits for employee and their family.

Review of applications will begin immediately, and those received by December 1, 2022 will receive full consideration. Applicants should submit their materials through the hyperlink provided below. Required application materials include a letter of application, curriculum vita, official transcripts (undergraduate and graduate), contact information for three current references, and a statement of teaching philosophy. Teaching evaluations and recommendation letters may be requested later in the selection process.
